By 7 o clock there was a good sized lobby and at 7.30 there was a crowded one. The Fire Department Committee as a usual thing is prompt in gathering, but last evening the members hung back as long that the Health Committee took possession of the Council chamber.

At one time it was thought it would be in possible to get a quorum of the members Finally sufficient members appeared and they adjourned to the Clerk's room which was rapidly filled to sufficient on by the spectators who crowded over on the committee, sat on the tables and stood up in the narriage licenses.

Galligan sat at one end of the table and softly whistled to himself all the evening; Eccles was at the other end and sucked his cane as he sat with bowed head; Schultze was remarkably quiet; Criswell spoke in a manner that was evidently intended to be conciliatory, and the other members were very still. Business proceeded as usual-perhaps the bills were scrutinized a little closer and axplained a little fuller—otherwise it was about the same.

The first bill on which there was any comment was that of a blacksmith firm that charged 5c more for each remove and shoe than another firm. The Chief was ordered to have the work done at the cheapest place. The next thing was a bill for two stemmer wheels—$125. The chair said that the wheels had been put on the Vigilant engine; that the old wheels were ready to break down at any time, and that the new wheels were an about the control of the control should have ordered them, or at least the committee been told something should be weather. 4 o'clock, and Friday evening at 7:30.

The Health Committee met last evening and audited the regular monthly bills. The awarding of the garbage contracts was again postponed. It is the ,desire of this committee to have that matter taken in charge by the Board of Control for the Streets and Alleys. ening appointed a committee of two from nong its members to visit the United engine and ascertain what would be best in repair-

A bill of $55 for small hose for washing the hook and ladder truck, and the Hope and Seventh ward hose carts created another like breeze. The Chief said they were necessities and he included them in the order to properly furnish the houses recently put in service. This over, Mr. Criswell gingerly took up a paper and said, "Here is a bill for some time from Pittaburgh. The bill is dated August 0 and we received it two or these dairs.

Galligan—It was received August 11, and the freight was paid August 19; the books of the company will show is.

This started the ball. Galligan appealed to the Clerk of the city about some matter in connection with the winc, and the Chairman sat down on it, whereupon Mr. Craeraft took it up and obtained the answer. The bill was an invoice, and no one knew how it came to be on the table with the other bills. The Chief said he had never seen it. Clerk Bowers and he had never received it. The bill was folded, and showed marks of age. The question as to how it came on the table and who put if there was unanswered. The Chief told about having written about the matter, and or stodies are the control to a superior stodies.

The meeting of Council to-night will be one of unusual interest; in addition to the regular monthly bills, there will probably be the charges against Chief Eccles presented by Clerk Galligan and the election of the Boards of Control for the water works and streets and alleys, to say nothing of the miscellaneous matters that will come up.

The fire was evidently of incendiary origin. The flames first burst out next the alley, where the hay was piled, and so dry and inflammable was the entire building and its contents that in a very few minutes it was a solid mass of fire. The West Virginia Conference passed similar resolutions at their annual meeting in 1889. Removal of Remains from the Chapline Cemetery.

For a long time what is known as "the Old Chapline Cemetery" was quite a prominent burial place, but the extension of the city has gradually encroached upon it, and it has fallen into disuse and neglect. Its proximity to the inhabited portion of Twenty-third street has made is an eye-sore to the people of that community, and accordingly steps were maken to end its cristence as a cemetery. The House yesterday passed a bill which flad already passed the Senate, and which now requires but the signature of the Governor to become a law. It is "A bill to authorize the heirs of William Chapline and others from the place where they are now inbeirs of William Chapline to remove the re-mains of the said William Chapline and others from the place where they are now in-terred to some other cometery," and reads as follows:

But said heirs shall also remove all tombstones and boards, and shall place every such stone or board in the cametery to which the remains are removed, and over the body to which it belongs."

This time it is Mrs. Fox, who lives at 1815 Chapline street, and supports herself and several small children by taking in washing. She has a husband, but is not living with him at present. Yesterday she met with some disappointment, and it convinced her that life was not worth living. She accordingly procured a quantity of laudanum and prepared for herself a liberal dose. She had almost succeeded in swallowing it when a neighbor chanced to enter, and, apprehending the situation, prevented her from carrying her deadly resolve into execution. She had thought better of it last night, and was satisfied to live a little longer.

In our rambles on the South Side yesterday we dropped into the store formerly owned by A. G. Etz & Co., and were surprised at the animated scene that met our gaze. The store has recently been purchased by Kurtz & Young, two of our most enterprising druggists, and in the short time they have had charge the business has increased to nearly double. Mr. Kurtz is a gentleman well known in this city, having been prescriptionclerk at A. T. Young's and other pharmacies for some years, and has established an enviable reputation as a thorough prescriptionist and accommodating gentleman. We cheerfully recommend this firm to our readers on the South Side, and assure them that any goods purchased from Kurtz & Young will be pure, fresh and accurately dispensed.

You can buy Carpets just as chean from prescriptionists.

You can buy Carpets just as cheap from us a any other house in the city.
